

ABSTRACT

A method and system for classifying consumers in clusters of similar behavioral and demographic characteristics. Demographic and behavioral data of consumers is used to generate a plurality of classification trees. The plurality of classification trees are searched for a classification tree resulting in an optimal set of clusters. The optimal set of clusters has clusters that are substantially homogeneous in demographic and behavioral characteristics.

Patented by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office